Rieke To Climax Rally Tonight

Dr. Marcus Rieke, youth director of the American Lutheran church, will climax the state youth rally tonight at 7:30 with the inspirational address "Let's Live Christ."

Recently co-director of the Lutheran World federation meeting at Hanover, Germany, Dr. Rieke has been serving as ALC youth director since 1943. He has been instrumental in the promotion of Leadership Training schools in the ALC.

Pattus To Lead Songs

Also on the program this evening will be the Rev. Chester Pattus, assistant youth director, who will lead a congregation service. Mr. Pattus was appointed to his office at the Lansing Lutheran League convention last August.

Leaguers and other Protestant youth groups from four states are expected to attend the mass ceremonies. Members from several Iowa schools will also be a part of over 2,000 young people expected to attend the rally.

Game Groups Rally

Planned in conjunction with the ALC convention weekend, the rally unofficially begins with today's Upper Iowa-Wartburg game at 2 p.m. on the Waverly Municipal field.

"A special admission price for the Upper Iowa game is being given to all who are attending the rally," announced Norm Pirtle, public relations director.

Dr. Marcus Rieke

Rev. Heiges To Speak Sun.

The Rev. Donald Heiges, director of student service for the Lutheran church, will speak on "Christian Vocations in the Church and Christian Education" at the higher education service to be held tomorrow at 9 a.m. in the Knights gymnasium.

Also participating will be Pres. J. H. Bender who will read the scripture, and Rev. Alexander, president of Luther college, Decorah, Iowa, who will lead in prayer.

Wartburg choir, directed by Dr. Edwin Liemohn, will present numbers, including "Christ Ist Erstanden" and "Lasset Uns Frohlich Sein Unser Heil Gott Dem Allmächtigen" Wartburg seminary chorus, of Dubuque, directed by Dr. A. A. Jackow, will also furnish music during the program.

Following the Benediction, Leslie Bunnell, directed by Dr. E. A. Hoedemer, will sing a medley of college songs.

An organ recital at 7:45 p.m. given by Dr. Hoedemer will precede the service. A new Hammond organ purchased by the Student Piano Co., Des Moines, will be used throughout the convention week.

Campus Directories To Be Sold Oct. 16

Already prior to press, the annual campus directories are expected to be sold Thursday, Oct. 16, as revealed this week by Rudy Kolbe, editor of the directory and president of the campus chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma, national honorary journalism fraternity.

Published by the journalism unit, the directory contains the name, classification, home address and school address of Wartburg students and faculty.

At a recent meeting Alpha Phi Gammates made plans for the third annual Homecoming breakfast for campus members and alumni.

Judging Of Rooms, Open House Set For Next Saturday

Open house and judging of rooms will be held in campus living residences during Homecoming celebration next weekend, according to Con Gretzlaff, senior and open house chairman.

Saturday, Oct. 18, judges will rank rooms between 9 and 10 a.m. The display will be open to all on Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. and on Sunday from 1-4 p.m.

Three top men's rooms and the three best women's rooms will receive prizes. Gretzlaff stated that judges will be rated on neatness and cleanliness, conducriveness to study, originality showing hobbies and interests, color combinations and arrangement of furniture.

Dormitories and annexes to be judged include Wertburg, Ball, Grossmann hall, North hall, Annex 1, Delta house and Castle house.

Castle Tales Calls 1st Meeting Tues.

Castle Tales, campus literary club, will be the first group to hold a meeting of the year Tuesday, Oct. 14, at 7:45 p.m. in room 12 Luther hall, it was announced this week by Ted Heinecken, president and editor of the Tales.

Only those people who have been contacted for membership on the roll are expected to attend, according to Heinecken. Kermit Vandenhoff of the English department will act as advisor to the group.

"Since we have a late start this year and plan to put out two issues instead of one, it is necessary that all the people I've contacted be present at the Tuesday meeting," stated Heinecken.

Dr. Leupold, Cap Prof, Will Address Chi Rho

Dr. H. C. Leupold, professor of Old Testament at Capital seminary, will speak at Chi Rho meeting tomorrow at 4:00 p.m. in the Knights gymnasium.

Election of a faculty adviser to replace the Rev. Nort Schmidt, who has resigned, has been made, also on the agenda. Applications for membership turned in at the previous meeting will be voted on for acceptance.

Bredow Banquet Speaker

Speaker for the Centennial Homecoming banquet to be held Oct. 18 at 6:30 p.m. in the Knights gymnasium will be Lieutenant George Bacom, junior and barrel chairman. The dinner will take place in St. Paul's parish hall.

Now serving Zion Lutheran church in Clinton, Mr. Bredow was pastor of Bethlehem Lutheran church in Davenport for 11 years. He came to Iowa in February of this year. Big project of Mr. Bredow, Wartburg graduate of 1924, is youth work and Bible camp planning. His address at the banquet will center around the Homecoming theme, "Century to Century—Wartburg."

Toastmaster for the evening is Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, of Wartburg seminary. Also appearing on the program will be the Homecoming Queen, the football team captain, Chuck Norris, Bobbie Lee Erickson, Homecoming chairman.

Biedermann will present the awards to Best contest winners. A program of drama and music under the direction of Bernie Hilmer and Hank Dietz, seniors, will conclude the evening's entertainment.

"Tickets at $1.50 are still available from Gene Gruenke, senior, or me," stated Bacom. "Why not take advantage of this once-in-a-century opportunity?"

Delegates To Face Problem On Floor Wednesday A.M.

By Chuck Lutz

"Building one Lutheran church in America is the biggest issue confronting this convention," said Dr. Henry Schuh, president of the American Lutheran church, upon his arrival in Waverly for the 10 a.m. business meeting of the ALC.

Although the convention officially began Tuesday morning with a communion service at St. Paul's, business sessions will not get underway until next week. Delegates will meet on Thursday, Friday and Saturday in committee meetings, laying groundwork for the main business to be taken up next week.

Don't Jilt Photographer

National studios of Waterloo will begin taking photos of seniors and freshmen girls wates in the lounge of Wartburg hall Monday, Oct. 13 according to Portress Editor Rudy Kolberg. Students are asked to keep their appointments.

Homecoming Pins Available Monday

Homecoming buttons will go on sale Monday morning, Oct. 13, at 25 cents each, according to Darrell Allison, sophomore in charge of novelty sales. Football shaped buttons will be sold at the Homecoming game next Saturday for the same price.

Buttons are three inches in diameter, gold-backed with black lettering and a knight's head, selling contest is being held between the men and the women. The winning side will be honored through the reading of a citation in the Homecoming program.

Each ballotot will have a tag stating the name stamped on the back it and will be tallied with buttons. Buttons will be sold after the first Wartburg touchdown or at the half, and the tag returned from the greatest distance will bring the owner a cash prize.

English Profs Meet

Attending the annual meeting of the Iowa conference of the English today at Central college, Pella, are three members of the Wartburg English department.

Dr. G. J. Neumann, Miss Erna Moehl and Miss Margaret Wolff are at the meeting for today only, although the conference has been in session since yesterday.

Delegates To Attend Conference Of Lutheran Faculties

Eighteen Wartburg faculty members attended the fifth annual conference of the Association of Lutheran College Faculties held last Friday and Saturday at Luther college, Decorah.

Dr. S. C. Pohlman of Concordia Lutheran seminary, St. Louis, Mo., opened the conference by introducing a phase of the continual task of the Christian college, a theme which was discussed throughout both days.

At the conference banquet Saturday evening Dr. Arthur Flipsen, also of the Concordia seminary, addressed the group on the theme "The Place of Lutheran Ideals in Our Generation."

Following the banquet, all delegates were guests at the football game between Wartburg and Luther.

Austerud Visits Confab

Miss Stella M. Austerud, of the education and geography department here, is attending the land session today of a conservation conference being held at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis. She has been attending the meeting since Wednesday.

Hoesmann To Talk

The Rev. Henry Hoesmann, evangelism director of the ALC, will address Pibson, campus group, on the organization, Monday, Oct. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in room 12 Luther hall. Mr. Hoesmann was on campus last February as leader of Spiritual Emphasis week.

ALC Convention Issue—Welcome, Delegates And Visitors!

Let's Junk 'Who's Who'!

Candidates for "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" were chosen recently by the student body. Before the returns come back from the national committee, the TRUMPET has something to say about this annual travesty which probably creates more adverse comment than any other facet of college life.

It may be stated that "Who's Who" in itself is probably not a bad idea. To select the outstanding seniors of a college and throw them together with similar groups from schools of the nation only has no particular demerit.

But when something arouses as much controversy, criticism, even bitterness as here occurs "Who's Who" in its worth is highly questionable. The TRUMPET this week received a letter presenting a few sides of the issue. There are many points.

To make the initial ballot a student must meet certain academic requirements. But who sets these requirements? And what are they?

Last year the grade-point qualification was 2.5. This year an unrevealed land arbitrarily moved the minimum up to 2.75. Naturally, those in the bracket between the two minimums expected to see their names on the ballot. Not so. Now comes the rumor that some students who were quite meet 2.75 were left on anyway because someone felt they should be on.

Some students miss the ballot because they simply can't meet requirements. Others, usually a few of these probably don't deserve to be there, but the TRUMPET feels many of them do.

There's Joe, for instance, a talented lad whose services are desired by numerous extracurricular activities. Joe has the potential to make the minimum easily, but time's not generous enough. So what happens? The old grade-point.

Contrast Joe with Mary, who is conscientious enough about studying to have 2.75. But Mary is also deeply involved in tributes little to the school beyond her record of credits in her major subject. Still, according to the ballot, she is worthy to vote on the basis of leadership and extracurricular participation, as well as academic work.

Who does Mary vote for the school? Which one should really be on the ballot?

Another reasonable gripe is the time of the year at which balloting is conducted—three weeks after school begins. This year nearly half the voters were new students. Freshman votes were not counted at full value. But they were counted. How well did they know the seniors they were naming as the outstanding leaders their school could offer? They'd heard a few names, but they were told to vote for nine. And many fresh have admitted they actually knew only four or five.

Some students feel "Who's Who" elections are not what they pretend to be at all but rather mere popularity contests. This gripe is debatable, of course; yet the judgment is so often heard that it must have a sound basis.

So what shall we do with "Who's Who"? Many other schools ignore the question by dropping the whole idea. The TRUMPET feels Wartburg must follow suit. We don't really need it here—admittedly, it does more harm than good. So before the issue gains a chance to revive itself next fall, let's eliminate it, firmly and finally!

POLITICAL INQUIRY

By Bob Kodres

Red Tinge Still Exists

"Communism and freedom . . . signify two titanic ideas, two totally irreconcilable beliefs as the nature and destiny of man." These were the words of General Eisenhower in a recent speech on communist infiltration in government.

Today we are protected from federal and state graft and corruption, they are in every way against the idea of communism. Communism is against our principles and can change every rule in the book to its advantage, making it impossible for us to alter any of life to its control. Communism's aggressive force doesn't allow us to change our government as it exists in Russia.

It is well know, our problem is exceedingly real, and we can not afford to overlook any possibility of communist aggression. One of the most dangerous problems, however, is communist infiltration into the government.

Democratic principles exile it because it is the FBI to Republicans a secret agent on the black list, a profession which presents for the Republicans. We must therefore guard against and safety as well as keep the dangerous elements from becoming a contagion. There is no conclusion to the way in which we must devote our energies to finding an answer.

Many approaches to future problems should be found. Using FBI to the fullest extent in checking the background of everyone connected with government employment and bringing the findings accessible to authorized members of congress should be part of the program. Congressional inquiry into government employees, individuals, the innocent ones having little to be embarrassed about.

However, we can not be carried away by the power of phantoms. Careful preliminary check and recheck of suspects would prevent the label "McCarthyism," into such a serious term in the Democratic vocabulary.

Truman has done little to expose guilty conniverses, and we are not doing much better if we elect a man who so bravely stuck with Alger Hiss at the most time ago. Freedom remains in peril if we, the people, do not sell

Campus Social Life Needs Shot In Arm

The worst thing that can happen to any school is to become a Peculiar college. Wartburg will probably never fall quite that far because many of its live too far from home. But it makes us wonder if trip some practices don't tend to make students feel and act peculiarly. For instance, Wartburg may soon come to resemble a cattle barn in that respect.

Who's wrong? Why don't students stick around Saturday nights? Maybe because they have overheards at home. Maybe they miss mu and pa. Or maybe they simply don't like weekends here. The TRUMPET is inclined to accept the latter—if it hasn't been around the past few weekends, you know why.

Wartburg Entertainment Limited

Wartburg's social life is abominable! It never has been too good, this year it's hitting a new low. Certainly, the town of Waverly offers the entertainment demanded by most college men: ball tit size—theaters and a bowling alley. But how many men can afford regular bowling dates? And what girl likes to sit through a steady diet of action movies?

Wartburg students suffer from apecing week through last night, four have been filled with no comment, all-out frustration—we've had a silent baby minor (where few really got to mix), a Saturday morning rickshaw ride (no change from the usual fare), a talent show (thanks for a little variety), and a Saturday night dance (also something different, but, gone for another year).

Away Seems Attractive

Two football games also appeared on the calendar. But actually, few go to see football games although quite a few toward the trek to Luther, it's the chance to get away advertised which most Wartburg pocketbooks can survive.

These next two weekends, thanks to the church convention and Homecoming, will offer some variety just other than, what?

It's an embarrassing fact that many Wartburg girls are so bored on weekends as a terrible jam is brick house. For many it's a case of either going home or staying in and studying. Or sitting. Still, we hear there are two men on this campus for every woman.

Man, Woman Ratio Gripe

Some claim the women are unattractive, immature or uncharming. Others say the men are boastful, stingy or uninteresting. Both may be true.

The TRUMPET won't attempt to resolve that, another factor more positive than scapegoating the opposite sex.

All of us, because we're human beings, like a little variety in our entertainment. And most of us, because we're from middle-class families, don't have the cash for extravagant weekends on the big pocket.

What's the answer? It's obvious, isn't it? Wartburg's social calendar needs rejuvenation. Dancing is the recreation that most people like, and dances in the weekend would be a good start. Dances, of course, are expensive. But here is a suggestion: Dances are the up to sponsorship groups of eight.

Needs Some Control

As far as the TRUMPET can discover, no one at this time is directly in charge of seeing that students have a varied, full social life. Yet, more than anything else, is what we need. Student Senate should either assume direct control, or else place a board of imaginative students in charge. Maybe we could even have the idea of hiring a full-time social director.

Wartburg students in general, are quite original and productive in most spheres. Now let's do a little creative thinking in this area, too.

In Ceaseless Effort To Build A College, Dr. Becker Conducts One-Man Crusade

By Bob Snyder

Wheeling his two-tone Oldmobile like very professional golfer, a man is preaching sermons almost every Sunday, meeting people, giving to solicit money for Wartburg while still tending the flock of his college—these are just portions of the duties of Wartburg's president, Dr. Conrad Becker, has performed.

Early in 1952 the board of Higher Education and the Board of Trustees of the American Lutheran Church combined, and the administration of Wartburg High School, Wartburg Junior College, Wartburg Theological Seminary for a new gate destinatory as the budget of the church was raised. The goal once was to be raised by the college.

Gifts Obtained Individually

Conclusions were that offerings should not be requested, but that the money must be obtained through individual contributions from people who have faith in them—alumni, former students and former contributors to the college building program.

Since back March Dr. Becker has preached and solicited in a different congregation in company every Sunday except four. He has visited congregations in Iowa, Minnesota, Colorado, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Kansas and Nebraska. For the remaining months of 1952 he is scheduling trips in Iowa, to Illinois, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Typical campaign in a community is described by Dr. Becker as the local ALC church, at which he usually arrives at the larger instance of Christian higher education in the area of the church. This is followed by as many personal interviews as possible during the remainder of his stay in the area. He has conducted 22 interviews in one day, from 8 in the morning to 11 p.m.

Former, Manufacturer Give

Contributions received for donations range from a wheat farmer in Colorado to the president of Wilson Manufacturing company, Fond du Lac, Wisc.

According to Dr. Becker, "The church can make this work a tremendously stimulating is that one of the things that I have learned is that people are ready to contribute higher education, and especially interested in Wartburg college."

An indication of this interest is shown by the fact that of all the persons contacted, fewer than five per cent have not contributed.

While touring the midwest in search of donors, Dr. Becker has had several extraordinary experiences in covering 20,000 miles since March.

One Colorado farmer had pledged the profits of his 40-acre wheat crop to Wartburg, but in August the crop was destroyed by hail. Then late Saturday a check for $1,000 was delivered to the college. In explanation the farmer wrote that although his Colorado crop had been destroyed, he had faith in the Wartburg cause and he didn't think the money could wait, which state the money could be forwarded.

Wrote Two Letters

Recently the parents of a student who had attended Wartburg school here sent $1,000 so that other students could have the opportunities their child might have had. Immediately following this gift came another for the same amount from a member of the same congregation as the bereaved parents.

Local benefactors have been equally generous. Nine people from Waverly have given $1,000 or more each to the current drive, and most of these friends had contributed generously to the campus development fund and the Luther hall addition in other drives.

Becker's Burden Eased

Dr. Becker points out that his work would have been impossible without the aid of the help given by Herbert Engelbrecht, assistant to the president of the college.

Dr. Becker and Engelbrecht, together with the full cooperation of the whole faculty and staff, are conducting a campaign of "the program can't slow up because of the drive and the responsibility of the two most-needed buildings on campus," concluded Dr. Becker.

Wartburg's future depends on progress, the broadening of its horizons, providing for present needs and the addition of modern facilities. Undoubtedly more building programs will follow, and with them, the man who will pioneer them will be Dr. Conrad Becker.

Knights Seek 1st Win In Engine Bell Battle Today

Victors Only Twice In 13 UIU Contests, Jo-men To Face Big Line, Fast Backs

By Jim Saxter

Battling for the engine bell—the victory trophy that has found a home at Wartburg only once—the Wartburg Knights meet the Buffalo Pirates on the Waverly Municipal field at 2 p.m. today.

Wartburg's gridiron encounters with the Peacocks in the past have been anything but fortunate for the Knights. Since the inception of the series in 1938, Wartburg has won only twice, once in 1948, and again in the momentous thriller of 1951.

Knights Win, 26-20

Last year's battle hung tight down to the final gun and was finally decided when Wartburg's quarterback Ted Fritsche sent "Pete" Ehmas through the middle of the line as a decoy and backed beyond the ball around right end for six points and a precious six point margin of victory—26-20.

Coach Norm Bowman's charges will be led today by the offensive running of halfbacks Cy Pirk and Rudy Grabe and fullback Charles Schumann. Also slated for plenty of business will be the Pritchel-Lowman passing combination. With more defense for the passer, a factor missing in both previous tilts this combination could prove the difference.

Wartburg's defense will have to cope with a huge Upper Iowa forward wall if it is to stop the small, fast Peacock backfield. Don Dopson has another triple-threat back, one reminiscent of the once-deported Bob Kelley in freshman Randy Harvey of Iowa River, 5-8, 175 in the UIU game so far this year. Harvey runs for two touchdowns and passed for the third as Bob team downed a Mitchellville, eleven.

UIU Line Averages 205

Leading the way for the fresh-man outfitted will be the massive Upper Iowa line averaging 205 pounds per man. The Peacock line stopped Millville for very little yardage via the ground.

Wartburg and Upper Iowa this have tied twice in the past. In 1949 the Chicago Great Western produced an engine bell as a traveling trophy for the two schools. Upper Iowa Bill Vogel in trophy exchange column with two wins against a single Wartburg victory.

Gridders Optimistic After Luther Defeat

By Ken Starck

Although the Knights dropped their second straight tilt last Saturday, the general feeling among players during practice this week was surprisingly optimistic.

Duffy Schumann, rugged fullback and defensive linchman, claimed, "Our ball-handling has improved to a great extent. We still need a lot of team for improvement. If we can keep on correcting our faults we'll be a hot little team that we were last Saturday."

Recapping the Luther game, right end Wendy Lierman said, "That 34-13 score sure didn't tell the true story of the game. We played better than that, but a few lapses in the defensive game Luther the edge. We should do all right against UIU."

All-conference possibility in the line, Norbert Woods added, "We really looked better against Luther. The line was more aggressive and the whole team clicked better."

Sure, we've come a long way since Augsburg," offered Rudy Grabe, fleet-footed halfback. "The line's improved and the whole spirit of the team is better."

"Well," concluded Assistant Coach Bill Fruehling, so far it's a cliqueless "it we keep shaping up better each game, so we did against the Luther boys, we'll give Uiu Upper Iowa crew a good, rough time."

North Hall Ends Cavalier Dominance, Captures Intramural Flagball Crown

North hall captured the intramural football crown Thursday by edging Grossmann III, 13-6. The other game slated for the same day was forfeited by Offenamus to Grossmann III. Tuesday night Grossmann I ran over the Eagles, 20-6, and Grossmann III won from Grossmann II by forfeit.

In winning Thursday's game, the Ambassadors got an end to the three-year string of championships owned by the Cavaliers. Grossmann III led the tilt since third floor was built in 1946.

Gaeffer Scores

North hall made all its points in the first half. The first tally was made on an interception by Dale Gaeffer as he snagged a Cavalier toss on the scoring line, and stepped across for six points. A pass from Eric Biedermann to Jim Sorenson circled the end zone and touchdown late in the second period. Angie Gerner added the extra point.

Grossmann III rallied in the last stanza of the game, making its only touchdown through the air on—Bob Adds taking a pass from Lowell Buchholz good for 60 yards. A safety produced the final two points for the Cavaliers.

Johnsen Breaks Leg

In the game Tuesday between Grossmann I and Offenamus Lee Verne Johnsen, freshman, was injured off the field with a broken leg late in the fourth quarter. Both bones in the leg were fractured above the ankle. Johnsen will be back in classes Monday.

Intramural basketball will start Oct. 27, stated Jerry Ritthe, intramural chairman. Games will be held on Mondays and Thursdays.

Student Opinions Vary On Merger Issue

Wente

Engelbrecht

Diers

Olson

Nitardy

By George Wagner

In the minds of Wartburg students, one issue seemed that this week was the question of Lutheran merger, as a church of union would be a good thing and should be striven for.

Question thrown out in the poll attempted to Lutheran students was "Should the three-way merger with the United Lutheran Church in America and the Evangelical Lutheran church, should we try right away for merger of all the American Lutheran synodical bodies — the ALC, ELC, ULCA, Augustana Lutheran church and Lutheran Free church?"

What About NLC?

Considered also were possibilities of merger between Wartburg and other on the National Lutheran council level or not Lutheran merger, which would include the synodical conference.

Norm Wente, senior prelegal student and senior class president, believes that from his Greek New Testament and emphatically stated, "I'd go ahead with the three-way merger and then work on the five-way. You have to start somewhere and you might as well start where there is willingness." As an afterthought he added, "I don't think we should unite with the United Lutheran church—they're too liberal."

Engelbrecht Likes ULC

In exact opposition, Dick Engelbrecht, senior pre-med student, staunchly declared, "We should merge with the ULC to get some of their liberal viewpoints combined with our more conservative ideas and see if we can find a happy medium."

"Well, that's hard to say offhand," replied Anna Diers, senior, as she searched for an answer to the question. "I feel that if we do," she continued, "that the three-way merger is a step towards the five-way merger of the American Lutheran conference. These would be advances toward total Lutheran unity which should come first. It's such a slow process!"

"Why not start right away with the five-way union?" asked Bernie Zacharias, sophomore. "It's more par would work with five. I'm for total unity, but I honestly think that's impossible. It would be wonderful."

Olsen Not Convinced

Not too convinced at the necessity of any merger, Floyd Olsen, senior pre-medical student, had this to say:

"I think it's something we should work for, but it isn't necessary. It's probably just as effective from a new world be therefore the National Lutheran council has correlated most of our joint efforts. We'd gain something in name, but I don't know if it would help in soul-winning."

"Complete Lutheran unity, including the Synodical conference, is when we should try for now," thinks Otto Nitardy, senior chemistry major. "It will take more than years, and it will have to be done eventually. The group will be strengthened and souls will be saved later on if complete unity is attempted right away."

"Two, four, six, eight, who do we apreshiate? Vartburh, Vartburh, Rah-rah!"

It hasn't come to this yet, but give those cheerleaders a decent chance and they'll have us all believing we're back at good old Muskingum.

The convention is here and in full swing. Wartburg students were a little worried at first whether the delegates would be able to endorse their chairman's resolution for the ALC merger, but now those fears are now alleviated. If those people can survive cafeteria food, they can survive anything.

Speaking of new dormitories—another dilemma complicates the situation. A few isolated students known as North hall men are afraid that when Old Main collapses it's going to eliminate their living quarters.

• • •

Every day to someone a waitress or waiter down in the Den or another dorm will be gone next week. You find your second quiz, hop up and down, scream, shriek, weep and finally sits exhausted into your chair. And where are these beasts that deny sustenance to your feeble frame? They stroll up and inform you complacently, "I'm sorry —you're not in my row. That's Sally's row."

One Sleepless Knight

By Sid Curtis

Hello, convention delegates. This week I'm going to skip my column for information about our fair city, just for you convention-goers. Some of the materials was used in the guide-book column I wrote last year, but how can I think up stuff every week with guys like my editor standing over me with whips all night? I'm not called the sleepless Knight for nothing.

• • •

Waverly abounds in scenic wonders. On the south are magnificent, rolling fields of ragweed, quack grass and scrub brush. On the east, north and west are more fields. With such a variety of scenic splendor one shouldn't want for things to look at. Of course, one can find better views right over yonder, across through there. Nowadays one can find better views of sand bars, mud banks and stagnant pools than along the scenic Cedar.

Transportation facilities are wonderful. One can enter the city on four highways, or on four highways, or on four highways. Three railroads pass through the town, but I doubt if you delegates would like to share your seats with prime lewe hogs. The airline service has increased tremendously since last year. Then there were only two, but now three planes go over every day.

For recreation the natives of Waverly can attend the many movies of our two great movie palaces, bowl, chase a little ball around our golf gouture, take long walks, sit on their porches, ride in their autos, or take long walks. If you are someone stalking you with a gun, it's just a native looking for a little change in his entertainment, and the game is scarce around here.

One of the most notable industries in Waverly—Wartburg college—is located on the outskirts, in the lowest district. This institution is called a college, but it's rumored that it's going out a private health resort for lazy youngsters. The natives get this idea from the way the people up here just walk around all the time with nice books to read.

Night life man, that's where Waverly really excels. It's really a thrill to stroll down Main street after nine o'clock and listen to the noises of all the town's nightime revelers—screeching tires, dog-dogs and police cars. Ah, yes, that reminds me. Don't drive over five miles an hour—the Waverly cops get no salary, so they work on a commission basis.

Waverly has industry, too. Besides the dragline plant, Waverly can pulpkins at the Marshall company, chickens at Diemer packing, and convooklopers at Wartburg. Marcy hospital turns out babies at the rate of five a day, too.

Mustn't forget Waverly's weather. If you want to escape normal weather, move to Waverly. It's the only spot on earth where it doesn't rain when it snows, and it's a huge outdoor gathering. It's freezing here when it's warm five miles away, and vice versa. The yearly temperature ranges from cold as a professor's stare to hot as a freshman's forehead at test time.

Remember, for best relations in the city of Waverly, take this column along with you when you venture downtown—and throw it in a trash can. "Bye for now . . . Sid

By Ted Heinecken

Brute strength in the line and bewildering running by halfback Kent Finsinger dropped Wartburg into the MAC cellar last Saturday night as Luther overpowered the Knights, 34-13, on Luther field in Decorah.

In a game chilled by icy, sub-freezing weather, about 3,000 spectators saw the Norse pounding for highly silly first five plays after the kickoff. Luther then took the mighty Norsemen's guns back with them and started pushing attack and timely second scoring drive to assume a 20-7 intermission command.

Base To Grube Clicke

With control of play in the second half, Luther continued to beat against the undermanned Grange and Black line and solid 20 yards for a touchdown. Finsinger's stamina threw a Chuck Grube pass for a cinch touchdown 36 yards gave Wartburg a second touchdown, 34-7. The Norse made three more TD's in the second half and scored for a final fourth period field.

Wartburg took the opening kickoff on its own 38 and pushed to the Luther 45 in four plays. Then halfback Cy Fick unleashed a high, uncertain lob which Wendy Lutscher, Finsinger's goal line coach, plucked from the hands of two Norsemen defenders and sped across the double stripe. Ted Fritschel placed the spinsted, between the uprights and the Wartburg eleven went berserk.

Luther Strikes Back

Hans Petersen coolly guided Luther back up the field and took the ball over on a fourth-down quarterback sneak. Bob Savre, who had failed on only two fieldgoals this season, converted and the score was knotted.

Early in the second period a series of breaks gave Luther possession on the Knight 30. Three plays later a Petersen to Bert Steen toss was good for six points. Norby Wendta kicked through savagely to assure Savre's second attempt for the extra point.

Then just before the first half ended, the same Petersen-Steen combo made good from nine yards out. Savre added the extra point and Luther possessed a decisive 20-7 margin.

Rogue Fumbles

Marked by rugged tackling and brilliant running, the second half was pretty much an even affair. Finsinger was the whole show for Luther, as highly-touted Gene Rogue, all-conference fullback, couldn't hold straight detentions and fumbled four times. Don Marquardt burned in an amazing off-tackle run, good for 21 yards and the fourth TD. Finsinger, with Finsinger went over from the 1 late in the period.

Wartburg took to the air in the second half, tossing 20 aerials in the last 30 minutes and completing six of them. Luther countered on three out of six attempts. Second end John Allison, Grube snagged on the 20 and called Wartburg's last attempt.

Finsinger carried 19 times for 118 yards, more than Wartburg could gather. Knight rushing totaled from his to steal the ball the Jonnen with 90 yards. Fick led the Jonnen with 52 yards in 12 attempts.

Halfback Cy Fick is tripped by a unidentified Norskie in last Saturday's grid battle at Luther.

Students May Use Archery Courses

Archery facilities are now available for college students and students of Waverly, it was revealed this week by Paul Wolf, local commercial artist and archery enthusiast.

Located below the Bremer church, indoor targets are now in use. A field course has recently been set up on the Wooding farm on the west bank of the Cedar river north of town and plans are being made by the Waverly archery club to add a conventional outdoor target range.

Phy Ed Dept. Goes Modern

Paul Keyels, sophomore, and Denise Morrill, freshman, take a few practice swipes during a recent coeducational tennis class on the Wartburg courts.

By Gus Schumacher

Wartburg's physical education department introduced something new this fall—six sections of coeducational classes. In past years no Wartburg physical education classes were made up of both men and women.

The coed classes offered by Wartburg's physical education department are all in individual sports. There are four sections of golf and bowling, and two sections of tennis and badminton.

Pro Teaches Golf

Ned Popper, Waverly golf pro and Rudy Langbehn, expert Waverly bowler, instruct the golf and bowling classes. Miss Adelaide Lamprecht, Wartburg physical education instructor, has charge of the tennis and badminton classes.

Meeting at the Waverly Municipal links, the golf classes learn to execute shots correctly by actually swinging golf clubs and by reading manuals on how to play. Pepper, who was the Iowa Open Golf tournament this summer, demonstrates the right way to drive, approach and putt, and attempts to correct mistakes in his classes of novice golfers.

Bowling Comes Next

In the middle of the semester, students will get away the golf clubs to learn the fundamentals of bowling. The bowling classes will meet at the Waverly alleys, where they will be shown how to roll strikes by Rudy Langbehn, former Iowa State manager of the Bowl-Inn.

Langbehn teaches two classes the fine points of playing tennis and badminton. At the present time she is meeting with her classes at the Waverly municipal courts. Later in the semester the classes will meet in the Knights gymnasium, where they will attempt to outwit all comers with a badminton.

Night Football Chills, Erases Thrills

College football, in my opinion, should be afternoon football," stated noted Ted Fritschel, Waverly quarterback.

"I don't like night football, and I've a few reasons why I don't like it," he continued. "Take for example, the game we played at home last night." (Although last year's Wayne-Wartburg game was played in Waverly, only a few have students attended it because of the bad-pro weather.) "It was so beastly cold that it numbed our hands, and we had a rough time handling the ball."

Another thing I don't like about night football is the poor lighting. Last Saturday night at Luther, for example, we couldn't see well at all."

Fritschel mentioned another unfavorable aspect of night football games.

"Every season Wartburg plays a couple of every games of night. A night game is over at 10—when we shower, dress and drive to a cafe to eat our meals. When we're done eating, it's usually about midnight. We begin the grueling trip back to Waverly, tired but unable to sleep because it's well night impossible when you're sitting erect on a bus seat.

"We return to Waverly sometimes about 1:30 to 4 in the morning, depending on how far the trip is. Since most of our away games are on Saturday night, it's hard for us to get up and go to church Sunday morning.

Not only is night football unpleasant for players, it's also rough on fans.

I was a freshly by the time the Luther game ended last Saturday," stated Jerry Allison.

"How can a person enjoy watching a game when it's so-soo cold?" added Sally Weber, who also witnessed the Luther-Wartburg game.

The weather at the Luther game wasn't too chilly for players because they were active, moving around and relaying their blood circulation. But fans had to sit in bleachers, and only a few who individuals, who were wearing a couple pairs of woolen sox, endured the ordeal without getting cold feet.

Some critical Wartburg students claim that cheering at the Luther game was lousy because Luther students did a half-hearted job of encouraging the crowd. Perhaps the use of amplifying high school yells, Wartburg cheerleaders weren't responsible for the lack of noise. Old man weather simply chilled Wartburg fans to the bone so that they had no desire to howl.

Night may be a good time to study for an examination; it may be a good time for a quiet date; it may be a good time to have a stimulating bull or hen session, but it is not a good time for a football game!

North Central Tells Athletic Policies

Making a definite stand against increased athletic emphasis by colleges, the North Central association recently revealed its policies relating to athletics.

The two main features of the policies are as follows:

1—In the future athletic programs will be judged by the association in terms of their educational contributions. This is a reaffirmation of the basic principles of colleges and universities that for educational purposes and that athletic programs should be conducted for entertainment, public relations or revenue. Universities are subversive to the principles of higher education.

2—An unsatisfactory athletic situation could have such far-reaching consequences as to cause the NCA to remove the quality college or university from its accredited list. Since loss of accreditation would mean a distinct loss of prestige in the educational world as well as creating real difficulties for students or faculty members who desire to transfer to other colleges or universities, this is regarded as a highly effective enforcement weapon.

MEYER SHOE CENTER

Diers' Season

By Henk Diers

Apologies to all my instructors. I had a difficult choice this week. Either I could study or I could go to class. I'm sorry I didn't go to class . . . Most people imagine college students really work themselves into a lather with such big problems as "Should I wear my charteuse vest or my cherry red bugle sweater for the football game Saturday?" or "What will I do? They're out of Pogo comic books at Meyers?" Kidding aside, we have a tough life. We don't have any books to study out of, so we have to carry blackboards home with us every night.

Last week Norm Fintel rounded up all the characters on campus and locked us in the Gasatist. I'm practically starved to death by now, but the physical labor made me so hungry I could eat three and a bucket of paint in the closet. If they don't let us out to race BV students on Homecoming, someone say hello to my Dad for me.

Have you heard the latest? It's not out yet, but here's a good guess. Rumor has it that Eric Bladehorne will have about the most unusual Homecoming float. At Alpha Omega, Paul Carlson and Joe Schmoe have been working very hard. At least they keep telling us so.

★ ★ ★

Buy a Homecoming button and make sure you get a genuine 1952 Centennial badge. Don't let anyone sell you his from last year. Keep in style. This year's button has an extra fine forest effect without anything else. Your friends won't even know you with a new Homecoming button on—in fact they won't even be able to see you.

And remember, you can't tell a delegate from a student without a Homecoming button. The delegates are the only ones who'll have enough money to buy one.

Hankie der Hund says—Wartburg may not be the biggest school, nor the smallest, but it sure is the friendliest. Everyone has the friendly faculty and student body you ever saw, the best health service and the finest player. (Where's my dentist?) Wherever you go, whatever delegates, we hope that in the week you're with us, you too may be very much a part of Wartburg's friendliness. We hope you'll come back forward to having you visit us. Come and see us again sometime. We'll miss you here.

KWAR Overhauls Schedule; Tape Shows Add Half Hour

KWAR, campus FM radio station, released a revised schedule this week, extending its nightly broadcast period from three to three and one-half hours.

According to Bob Snyder, senior and station manager, the 30-minute addition will be made possible through use of recorded tape programs released from the Radio Station Program Service of Chicago.

When we receive our new tape recorder we will further increase our broadcasting time to four hours each night," said Snyder.

Most interesting addition to the revised schedule, according to Snyder, is the series "Jefferson Heritage," which will be presented each Wednesday at 8 p.m. Portraying Jefferson will be Claude Rains, stage, screen and radio star.

Following is KWAR's revised schedule.

Tri-Beta Chooses Slate Of Officers

Tri Beta elected remaining 1952-53 officers at its business meeting last week, according to Bill Adler, senior and newly-elected secretary-treasurer.

Other officers elected were Jack Schmuck, senior, vice-president, and Marilyn Dreier, senior, historian. Orin Grube, junior, was chosen president of the group last spring.

Dr. Leo Petri, biology instructor, will report on his studies of pine lands in China at the next Tri-Beta meeting. Other topics of interest and experience in the field of biological research are being planned for future meetings, according to Grube.

Mongrel Or Pedigree, Loved Or Ignored, Campus Canines Find College Intriguing

By Gus Schumacher

No Wartburg team's gone to the dogs. The TRUMPET simply wants to acquaint you with a few of the outsiders, wobbly hounds and cocker spaniels who inhabit this campus.

All told, there must be a dozen or more dogs living on the campus. Unfortunately, there is no directory of dogs available, so nobody knows exactly how many cannies there are. Nobody is counting.

About two-thirds of Wartburg's dogs live out of the trailer court. Married couples like dogs because they make good excuses to take a walk. Exercise, you know.

Peterson's Own 'Queenie'

Roy Peterson and his wife, Mae, lugged their pet from Germany. The original pedigree accompanied the awkward friendly golden retriever. The Peterson pup is only six months old, but it grows like the proverbial weed. Roy explained that the pedigree name of his dog is "Golden Grove, the 6th." But Marjorie and he call her "Queenie."

"She's really an extrovert," Roy stated. "I took her down to the Den the other day, and she licked everybody in the place."

Queenie was so happy to be petted that she wagged that she just had to express her delight. She begin frantically wagging her tail. Ben manager, rushed surgical from the Kitchen.

No Dogs Allowed?

"We don't operate a barbecue dog on here!" said Vi.

"She doesn't seem to make trouble, Vi," Roy countered. "She just wagged her tail."

Following the prevailing trifler mood fad, Bill and Norma Tucker acquired a little black mongrel, affectionately dubbed Ivy.

"Mike isn't a pedigree, but he certainly thinks he's a big dog," Bill said. "He sleeps on the best couch in our trailer, and he doesn't like time with Taffy, President Ivy's cocker spaniel."

Taffy Travels

Taffy's best owner, Taffy gets around, spending little time at home. Taffy's favorite places are the cafeteria, during serving hours (as well as the food court), where he has numerous companions.

Wartburg's most conscious Uncle Herb is the owner of a pure bred German Shepherd. Penny is a year and a 16-year-old girl on her 1st date.

Dogs by Walt Roberts and Roger Bultje, inhabitants of the Publications house, include two calling her "Miss puppy," one "puppy" and one "little dog girl." Penny, interested from the start, as they were two ferocious great Danes.

Dog Arrives

While Walt and Roger were away, every back door, they were make the trembling, black and white dog come to them. Uncle Herb appeared.

"What's wrong your dog, Herb?" Beltrens asked. "She's the first dog I ever saw that's afraid of people."

"This may sound strange to you fellows," Uncle Herb stated, "but Penny here is strictly a one-man dog."

Penny Mysterious

Penny, Herbert Herb's globular face as Walt and Roger, completely ignored the unusual behavior of the creature, walked away.

"It just don't make sense, Roger," Walt said. "A dog has get to be friendly with somebody besides its owner."

"Till now, Walt, some jokes must've heaved a shoe at her. She's suffering from a persecution complex."

Bultje thought for a minute and said, "Maybe it's the right kind of psychology on her, she'll be willing to make friends with us."

She Needs Psychology

"You're absolutely right!" Beltrens screamed. "Psychology is what that critter needs."

For weeks Walt and Roger fed Penny candy bars, hot dogs, donuts, cookies, ice cream and portions of sandwiches. Their behavior brought favorable results. Penny became friendly with them.

Walt and Roger now have the lofty distinction of being about the only people besides Uncle Herb and his family who are doing a good job of feeding Penny.

Dogs belonging to the Publications house now—at they've of time enough studies.

Not all of the dogs on the campus are hoggy. There are two dogs, a miniature black wiggly and a cocker spaniel, with one of its ears half bitten off, who belong to that sad category of homeless canines. Both dogs depend on beautiful students for a livelihood. A dog is man's best friend. Anybody need a friend?
